IMPORTANT SUITS DECIDED

The Brush Electric Company Wine Its Case Against the Jenney People.

The Latter Permanently Enjoined from Making the Double-Carbon Burner-A Receiver Refused in the Midland Railway Case.

THE DOUBLE-CARBON BURNER. Judge Gresham Decides a Suit in Favor of the Brush Company. The Brush Electric-light Company gained a substantial victory in the United States Circuit Court here yesterday, Judge Gresham deciding in its favor the injunction and infringement suit against the Fort Wayne Jenney Electric-light Company. This suit was brought in May, 1885, for an alleged infringement of a patent granted to Mr. Brush, for what is commonly known as the double-carbon electric lamp—the lamps that are used for all-night lighting on streets, in hotels and other public places.

Judge Gresham's decision is long and exhaustive, reviewing the development of the electric light and going carefully into many details which would neither be popularly intelligible nor interesting, dealing, as it does, with legal and scientific technicalities. It may, however, be briefly summed up as follows: Mr. Brush secured his patent, No. 219208, Sept. 2, 1879, and assigned it to the complainant, the Brush Electric Company, of Cleveland, and this company brought its suit against the Fort Wayne Electric-light Company for infringing said patent. The principal feature covered by this patent was the employment of two or more pairs of carbons adapted to be burned in succession: that is, after the first be burned in succession: that is, after the first pair had been consumed, the other pair was automatically brought into action, and the light of the lamp thus prolonged for the purposes of all-night illumination, without requiring any manual handling or attention. This new and important result was acomplished by Mr. Brush by giving to each pair of carbons separate and independent movements and adjustments, and by separating them dissimultaneously or successively. The problem of producing an electric lamp that would operate all night, or for longer periods, if necessary, had been sought after by many inventors without success until Mr. Brush brought forth his double lamp. Being the first in the field with this type of lamp, he procured a patent upon it with very broad and comprehensive claims; and it was mainly upon the charge that these claims were too broad, general and sweeping, that the defense tried to invalidate the patent. It was argued that the claims were so broad as to be for functions and results, without any limitation as to any mechanism or conany limitation as to any mechanism or con-struction for accomplishing those results, and that, for this reason, the patent was

The decision of the court overruled this objection, and held that, while Mr. Brush is not narrowly limited to special features of construction, his claims, though they may be broad and far-reaching, are not for results and functions merely, and are not void, therefore, on that account. It was conceded by the defendants that if the claims of the Brush patent were not void on the technical grounds already stated, and if they were not anticipated by a certain patent granted to Mathias Day, jr., in 1874, infringement would have to be admitted. The Day patent was decided not to be such, or substantially such, an invention as that of Mr. Brush. The Day lamp was not only an enan invention as that of Mr. Brush. The Day lamp was not only an entirely different affair, but was not capable of operating, either in manner or effect, like the lamp of Mr. Brush. It was, moreover, shown that the Day lamp never went into any use, but, on the contrary, that the Brush double lamp was the pioneer among double lamps, and was the first ever given to the world, or put into public use. The Day patent was therefore set aside as having no anticipating or limiting effect upon any of the claims of the Brush patent.

The court, therefore, fully sustained all of the claims of the Brush company, and decided that all of them have been infringed. He also granted the injunction prayed for by the complainants.

Effects of the Decision. L. L. Leggett, of Cleveland, the attorney for the Brush Electric Company, was seen last evening by a Journal reporter, who asked him as to the effect of the decision. "It is a great victory for us," said Mr. Leggett. "The case has been fought by the Fort Wayne company with much persistence, and though we did not see how the final result could be otherwise, success is none the less pleasing. Mr. Brush was the pioneer in inventing and producing the double-carbon lamp, and it has always been conceded that the Brush double lamp was the first in the world to be invented and adopted commercially. It became immediately popular, and is in use the world over. Of course it was patented; and being a radically new departure and invention in electric lamps, a very broad and sweeping patent was obtained. It also followed that other manufacturers, seeing the necessity for such a lamp in their business, began putting out double lamps, and several other suits like this just day morning he forced his way into the decided are now pending in other parts of the country. This case against the Fort Wayne Jenney Company is the first one of the series that has been decided, but the rest will be reached in due time, as they are being actively prosecuted."

Not Unfavorable to It. Brainard Rorison, secretary of the Jenney Electric Company, of Fort Wayne, says that the decision of Judge Gresham rendered against that corporation yesterday, is not as unfavorable to it asone would think. He states that as the Thomson-Houston and Jenney people have bought out the Brush company, the outcome of the suit really gives the purchasers a marked advantage over the Westinghouse and other electric companies.

OTHER COURT MATTERS.

Harry Crawford Is Successful in His Defense in the Midland Suit.

Harry Crawford and his attorney, A. C. Harris, successfully resisted the application of the Loan and Investment Company of New York for a receiver for the Indiana Midland railroad, Judge Gresham, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday, denying the motion and refusing to appoint a receiver. Lew Wallace, jr., and A. W. Hatch appeared for the New York corporation. As the case has attracted much attention and been given much publicity, there was a large crowd in the courtroom when it was called. Mr. Wallace, in his statement of the case, recounted the charges that Crawford had, by misrepresentation, seenred a loan from his client of $138,000, and that therefor Crawford gave $1,000,000 in bonds issued on the property of the road. It was also claimed that these bonds were accepted as a first lien on the road, and that the original agreement was for a loan of $350,000. The attorney stated that after the $128,000 was procured by Crawford, it was discovered there existed prior judgments and liens against the property of the road amounting to $110,000. In corroboration of this statement the in-dividual affidavits of Coffin and Stanton were presented.

Mr. Harris presented ten strong counteraffidavits, vigorously denying all the charges. He claimed that the action was improperly brought; that it was not a foreclosure suit, but one in which the court foreclosure suit, but one in which the court was asked to take the road, and hold it until a receiver was necessary. The affidavits of several employes of the Midland company were read, contradicting the charges that the road had been run for Mr. Crawford's private gain, that its books were not properly kept, and that the road was in an unfit condition to be operated. It was further stated that the judgments and liens held against the road amounted to only $15,000, and that the assets exceeded the lightlities. Additional affidavits were then liabilities. Additional affidavits were then presented by plaintiff's counsel in support of the charges, the defense protesting against their admission on the ground that they had been filed too late for thorough examination and answer. The court ad-

renew the complaint hereafter if the changed condition of the property or the parties seems to require it." He granted defendant's prayer in its cross-bill for the court to require the Loan and Investment company to deposit forthwith, with the clerk of the United States Circuit Court, the bonds for $1,000,000, held by it in pledge. These bonds are to be held subject to the order of the court.

- It Can Have the Equipment. Judge Gresham yesterday considered the petition of the United States Rolling-stock Company asking for payment of amount due on equipments of cars the Atlantic & Chicago Railway Company held under a lease from the petitioner. The rental for these cars was fixed in the agreement at $723,000, and in a former petition part of the cars were returned to the rolling-stock company. Of the rental sum $61,000 was taken by the petitioner in car-trust bonds that matured in July last. After Volney T. Malott was appointed receiver of the road, an intervening petition was filed in which it was asked that the receiver be directed to pay to petitioner the amount it claimed. Judge Gresham said that neither before nor after the appointment of the receiver was the petitioner prevented from enforcing its undisputed right to the equipment. It cannot now claim that, by permitting the insolvent railway company to continue in the posses-sion and operation of the property of the bondholders, the mortgaged property was in effect pledged as security for the car rental in advance of the mortgages. The equipment, he said, embraced in the car trust agreement, is the property of the petitioner, and on its demand, possession will be surrendered within a reasonable Peter Giberson filed suit yesterday against the Parry Manufacturing Company for $20,000 damages. Last July he was injured by having an arm caught in a belting, and he claims the injury brought on paralysis. Twenty-three witnesses have thus far testified in the case in Justice Alford's court, in which David P. Fort is suing Cornelius Driscoll over a bridle-bit worth less than one dollar. The costs will probably reach $100.

The case of the Lapham-Dodge Company vs. Severin, Ostermeyer & Co. was decided by Judge Gresham, yesterday, in favor of the defendants. The suit involved a ques-tion as to infringement on Heath's patent washing-machine. The Judge held that the points of the Heath patent on which the suit was based had no claim to priority. The bill of complainant was dismissed for want of equity.

ITEMS FROM THE POLICE.

Philpot, Who Shot Williams, Arrested and Released on Bail.

Robert Philpot, who shot his brother-inlaw, Marshal Williams, early yesterday morning, was arrested shortly after the shooting by Captain Campbell. Philpot says that he was justified in the shooting. as Williams held him on the floor, as Williams held him on the floor, and, after cutting him, was about to do so again. This statement is supported by a fresh cut just over his left temple. He was released from custedy on $1,000 bail, furnished by his employer, who says Philpot is a sober and industrious man. Williams, who was removed to the hospital, is not considered to be out of danger. The afternoon previous to the shooting his wife appeared before 'Squire Judkins, and swore out a warrant for his arrest for assault and battery.

Tried to Shoot Her Husband. Yesterday morning, at No. 320 Superior street, a quarrel occurred between Frank McCloud and his wife Josie, when the latter, at short range, tried to shoot him. The revolver was discharged but the ball missed its object. McCloud had hit the woman, as patrolman Kurtz, directly after the shooting, ran into the house and found her bleeding from a wound on the forehead. She acknowledged shooting at her husband because he had illtreated her for the past house, and during the quarrel that followed drew something from his pocket and struck her with it. He then threatened to get a hatchet and kill her, and she, fearful that he would fulfill his threat, took the revol-ver from a drawer and fired at him. Mc-Cloud was arrested during the afternoon on a charge of assault and battery.

Result of a Drunken Quarrel. Samuel McKay stabbed John Ash in the right side, last night, about 11 o'clock. Both are colored men, and with they exchanged blows. McKay then drew a knife and plunged it into Ash. McKay, it is said, threatened to kill Ash while they were in the saloon. Dr. Jameson, who attended the wounded man, advised that he be removed to the City Hospital. He was taken there in Kregelo's ambulance. Ash is a single man, and is employed as cook at Eaglan's sa-McKay, after the stabbing, ran away, but was arrested within an hour, at his home.

on Wabash street. Charge and Counter-Charge, Walter Wickard, a respectably-dressed youth, was arrested last night on charges of assault and battery and picking pockets. Charles Harker told the police that while he was passing the corner of Court and Delaware Wickard took a small parcel containing dry-goods from his pocket. Wickard, on the other hand, claims that Harker and others set upon him and a rough and tumble fight took place, during which the parties concerned were arrested. Harker is held on a charge of assault and battery.

A Forger Arrested. A telegram from Muncie was sent to Superintendent Travis, yesterday afternoon. stating that T. W. Reeves, who was wanted there to answer a charge of forgery, was coming to this city. When the train arrived, an hour or two later, Reeves was arrested. At the police station he acknowledged his guilt, and turned over $60 and a gold watch. He will be taken to Muncie this mording.

Whipped His Wife.

Henry Patterson, who lives at the corner of Elizabeth and Blake streets, was arrested last night on a charge of assault and battery. He went home intoxicated, it is alleged, and severely whipped his wife.

MANDAMUS WRIT GRANTED.

A Technical Point in the Montana Muddle Decided Against the Republicans.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. HELENA, Mont., Dec. 24.-In Judge Hunt's court, this morning, was argued the now casus celebre of Roberts vs. Kenney, being the petition of Representative Roberts for a writ of mandamus to compel State Auditor Kenney to issue said Roberts a certificate for his per diem and milage as a member of the House of Representatives, and the ruling of the judge was promptly made in accordance with the prayer of the petition. Attorney-general Haskell claimed, on behalf of the Auditor, that the relator's petition was insufficient; that it did not set forth the facts of his nomination and membership in such House, nor did it set forth the concurrent action of the Senate and House showing days of service and mileage claimed; that it was a rule of law that mandamus should issue only when no relief is speedily attainable in law, and that in the absence of the authority of the joint resolution establishing his claim the State Board of Examiners must pass upon the re-lations of the claim before certificates should issue. Another point which the At-torney-general stated, but did not argue, was that there might be some question as to whether the relator was a member of the legal House of Representatives.

Colonel Sanders responded on behalf of petitioner Roberts. He read law on the province of mandamus and the duty of the Auditor. He held that the petitioner had shown that he was elected; had quali-fied and served as a member of the House a given number of days; had traveled a given number of miles to attend his duties; that no one of these facts being denied, he was entitled to certificates.

Judge Hunt held that, as a fact, if Roberts's claim as a State officer was not disputed, he was entitled to a certificate, and that the writ must issue. Mr. Haskell entered exception to the ruling of the court, and was allowed until Saturday morning, until 10 o'clock, to make a return. The vital point in the whole matter, the validity of Roberts's certificate of election, will then be argued.

ATLANTA'S DEAD EDITOR.

Preparations for the Funeral of Henry W Grady, Which Will Be Without Display. ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 24.-All arrangements for the funeral of Hon. H. W. Grady have been completed. While the funeral will not be a public one, in the usual meaning of the word, it will nevertheless be a most solemn and imposing demonstration. Tomorrow, at 1 o'clock, the body will be taken to the First Methodist Church, from where the procession will start for the cemetery. Committees from the Council, Chamber of Commerce, and all other orders and organizations of the city, have been appointed to escort the remains from the residence to the church. From the church to the cemetery orders and societies will attend in a body. No uniform or regalia of any sort will be worn, at the residence of the family, and the funeral will be conducted as quietly as possible. The funeral services will be conducted by five of the leading divines of the city, and the pall-bearers and honorary escort are composed of prominent men from all parts of the State.

Telegrams of sympathy and regret con-tinue to come to the family from all sec-tions of the country. A large number of floral offerings have also been received from other cities, among them a beautiful crown from citizens of Boston. On Thursday morning services will be held at the operahouse. Prominent men will speak.

SLAVIN TO BE GIVEN A BELT.

The Australian Prize-Fighter Will Be Recognized as Champion of England. LONDON, Dec. 24 .- At a meeting of the Pelican Club last night it was resolved to send a letter to Frank P. Slavin, the Austerday, expressing sympathy for him in the treatment accorded him, and admiration for his courage in fighting in the face of the ruffianism displayed at the ring-side. The club decided to recognize Slavin as champion of England, and to present him with a belt and a purse of money. Fleming. who acted as Smith's umpire, and who is a member of the club, was suspended from member of the cho, was suspended from mem-bership pending an explanation of the part he took in the disgraceful affair. In an in-terview Fleming said he was not acquaint-ed with the roughs who caused the trouble, but that they were doubtless friends whom Smith had hired to interrupt the fight in the event of its going against him. Fleming also said that he had severed the connecsaid that he had severed the connection between himself and Smith forever.

Slavin visited the Stock Exchange to-day and was received by the members with every manifestation of admiration. He seemed somewhat stiff and sore from the rough handling he was subjected to, and apparently had suffered far greater injury from the attacks of Smith's ruffianly friends than from any of the blows that Smith himself dealt him. Slavin was introduced to many of the prominent men on 'Change, and at the suggestion of one of these gentlemen the hat was passed round, with the result that £150 was raised in a few minutes and given to the courageous Australian on the spot. Slavin excited immense interest on the street, and the crowd that followed him became so great that he was obliged to take refuge in a cab, which he did amid the cheers of thousands of persons of all WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 24.-A brutal prize-fight was fought in a barn, four miles from Plymouth, early this morning, which, in all probability, will end in murder. James Burns and James Farrell were the principals. Four rounds were fought, characterized by the most terrific slugging. There was no science, but brute force took its place. When time was called in the last round Burns was unable to respond. He was picked up and removed to an adjoining farm-house. Drunken Affray in Which Two Blacksmiths Were Slashed to Death with a Razor.

Dover, Del., Dec. 24.-A drunken affray which cost two lives happened at Hartley, a small town in this county, near the Maryland line, this afternoon. Fred Maas and Alex. Dill, who run a wheelwright and blacksmith shop at Hartley, this afternoon were carousing there with several friends, among whom were George Peterson and John Hovey, of Dover. Peterson, who is also a blacksmith, taunted Maas with the assertion that he did not know his business. This angered Maas and he struck Peterson, and a general fight ensued. Peterson cut Maas with a razor, the blade passing through his left lung. Peterson also slashed Dill's throat in a fearful manner. Maas died in a few minutes, and Dill is dying. Peterson made his escape to the woods after the cutting and, it is thought, is now in the forest on the Maryland side. Scouting parties with torches, dogs and shotguns are scouring the woods to-night, and the friends of the murdered man swear they will shoot Peterson on sight. Hovey, who was with Peterson, was badly hurt during the fight, but has mysteriously disappeared.

SCALY SKIN DISEASES. Psoriasis 5 years, coverng face, head, and entire body with white scabs. Skin red, itchy, and bleeding. Hair all gone. Spent hundreds of dollars. Pronounced incurable. Cured by Cuticura Remedes.

CURED BY CUTICURA My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed. It then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my til my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head and shoulders being the worst. The white scabs fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the Cuticura Remedies, and after using two bottles Cuticura Remedies, and after using two bottles Cuticura Resolvent, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of Cuticura Resolvent and one box of Cuticura, and one cake of Cuticura Soap, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the Cuticura suffered for five years. I thought the disease would leave a very deep scar, but the Cuticura Remedies cured it without any scars. I cannot express with apen what I suffered before using the Cuticura Remedies. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recomend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. I know of a number of different persons who have used the Cuticura Remedies, and all have received great benefit from their use.
